

“It is my very humane endeavour to make, to some extent, each evil liver a running river of harmless merriment.”

All this ... the reader must enter into before he can comprehend the unimaginable horror which these dreams of oriental imagery and mythological tortures impressed upon me.

